Cardinal Meyer's Rites Today

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY

CHICAGO (AP) — Leaders of religious and civil life packed Holy Name Cathedral today for the final rites for Albert Cardinal Meyer.

The old limestone church could hold only 2,000. The seats were taken by 1,500 members of the clergy and 500 laymen and community dignitaries.

Mayor Richard J. Daley and Gov. Otto Kerner represented the city and state. Anthony J. Celebrezze, secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, represented President Johnson.

Thrones were set up in the chancel for six cardinals — Francis Spellman of New York, James McIntyre of Los Angeles, Joseph Ritter of St. Louis, Lawrence Shehan of Baltimore, Paul Emilio Leger of Montreal and Giuseppe Ferretto of Italy.

CHECK PEORIA STORES FOR DANGEROUS TOYS

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — officials began today an intensive check of Peoria area stores distributing a line of Easter toys declared health hazardous.

Dr. Fred A. Long Peoria County health director, announced plans for the search after receiving word from the Illinois Department of Health that the toys, called natural ducks, were hazardous.

Long said the toys, made of chicken and duck skins stuffed with artificial material, contain a bacteria called salmonella. He said the bacteria can cause stomach disorders and excessive bowel movements.

Know That Guy Who Makes Us Seem Slobs?

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON

AP Science Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — You know the guy who always gets to work on time and does his job well — makes the rest of us look like slobs? Well, the poor fellow may be suffering from chronic anxiety.

The chronically anxious feel miserable, but they are physically, intellectually, emotionally and socially above average, Dr. Herman A. Dickel, University of Oregon Medical School psychiatrist professor, said Monday.

The chronically anxious patient was described and methods of treatment were outlined by the psychiatrist at the annual convention and scientific assembly of the American Academy of General Practice.

Anxiety and fear are the same, Dickel said. When a person bottles up his emotions but forces himself to keep going while holding back, he is a typical victim of chronic anxiety. They are like persons who "drive a car by stepping hard on the gas, and then put a foot on the brake to hold it down to the speed they wish to go," he said.

Observation usually makes diagnosis simple, Dr. Dickel told fellow physicians — their tenseness, their obvious urgency shows.

"Almost without exception their anxiety has an affect on you. You begin to feel anxious, you feel driven to do more, you doubt your findings, increasing the number of tests that you turn to. This is the anxious patient."

Ice Jams Crumbling

Expect Flooding To Be Increased

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Ice jams on tributaries and on the Mississippi River north of the Twin Cities began crumbling today, releasing impounded waters on flooded sections of southern Minnesota.

The Minnesota flooding, which has made more than 20,000 homeless and caused more than $20 million damage, was expected to become more widespread.

At St. Paul, where the Mississippi has been channeled between dikes that reach 28 feet, the river started to rise sharply late Monday when ice jams 50 to 60 miles northward began breaking up.

The river at St. Paul stood at 22.75 feet early today and Civil Defense officials estimated it would rise to 25 feet by noon today. It is expected to crest at 27 to 27.5 feet Friday, just under the top of the dike.

The Crow River flooded Monday at St. Cloud, north of the Twin Cities, and an ice jam at Coon Rapids on the Mississippi broke up with tremendous force late in the day.

The Mississippi began to rise in Minneapolis early today toward its expected crest of 21 feet Wednesday. Several low-lying industrial areas in the north and northeastern sections of the city were expected to be flooded.

Gov. Karl Rolvaag, who Saturday asked that 38 Minnesota counties be designated disaster areas, added five counties to this group Monday because rivers in the western and northwestern portions of the state had begun flooding and causing evacuation.

A Civil Defense official said the release of water held back by ice jams in the north probably will cause "a foot to a foot and a half more of water downstream than we had in the 1952 flood."

Act On Other Measures

Culturally Deprived Plan Gets House OK

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Otto Kerner has won overwhelming endorsement by the Illinois House of his $27 million program to provide compensatory education for culturally deprived children.

The bill, which covers youngsters from age 3 through 18, was forwarded to the Senate Monday night on a 156-2 vote.

The measure is designed to help children to learn pre-school skills and to help combat the school dropout problem.

Under the bill, lagging youngsters would be sought out by school counselors for instruction to bring them to a level of achievement normal for children of their age.

School districts would be repaid $50 a year by the state for each child aided. Rep. Chester Wiktoriski, D-Chicago, said the bill would affect 200,000 children in Chicago and 160,000 downstate.

Wiktorski said he hoped the program would be called the "Armstrong Opportunities Act" in honor of its sponsor, Rep. Charles Armstrong, D-Chicago, who died after he introduced the bill.

The House also passed a measure to require the secretary of state's office to notify motorists 30 days in advance of the date their drivers licenses expire.

Gunmen Escape With $8,000 In Rings At Joliet

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — Two gunmen escaped with $8,000 in rings and an undisclosed amount of cash from a downtown Joliet jewelry store where they left a policeman bound with a clock cord Monday.

Police said the men entered the store and bound two customers and the store owner, Walter J. Kiep, 69, with tape. When the policeman, Ustin Lewickas, 51, entered the store, the pair bound him with the clock cord and fled.

Lewickas said he stopped in the store to see Kiep, a long time friend, before taking his downtown traffic post. He said the gunmen were between 50 and 55 years old and wore dark glasses.

Kerner Inspects Lake Area Red Cross Aides Man Centers

By The Associated Press

CRYSTAL LAKE, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Otto Kerner inspected tornado - wrecked Crystal Lake today, where Palm Sunday storms killed five persons and damaged $10 million worth of property.

The governor flew to this community 45 miles northwest of Chicago for his damage inspection tour. The twister also killed a 5-year-old boy in nearby Island Lake and an 8-year-old Chicago boy.

Sheriff Edward Doud of McHenry County made the $10 million damage estimate. But the vicious storms also ruined more than $2.5 million in property in Kane, Boone, Winnebago, Lake, Cook and Kankakee counties.

Sixty-nine persons were injured in Crystal Lake and 23 of them were hospitalized, the Red Cross said. Dozens more were injured in other parts of the state.

National Guard units were activated and 65 state troopers were sent to the area to help overworked local police, civil defense workers and Red Cross volunteers.

The Small Business Administration declared McHenry, Kane and Winnebago counties disaster areas, permitting small businessmen, homeowners, churches and charitable organizations to apply for emergency federal repair loans.

State Treasurer William J. Scott transferred $1 million in state disaster funds to two Crystal Lake banks for redbursement as emergency loans.

Volunteers — at least 150 of them — manned Red Cross disaster centers in Crystal Lake and Island Lake.

A spokesman at the center set up in Crystal Lake High School said one wall of the gymnasium was piled high with clothes contributed by thankful families who suffered no storm damage. He also said families had contributed "several truckloads" of emergency food, some of which was being doled out to needy homes and the rest prepared for the emergency workers.

Mrs. Margaret Beber, a Red Cross worker, said clothing contributions were so generous that "We've had to say hold off and we'll call you when we need more."

Hampered By Power Shortages Littered Roads Slow Mop-Up

By The Associated Press

The vast job of cleanup was under way today in six tornado-scarred states, hampered by power shortages, debris-littered roads and, in some cases, looting.

The cleanup operations, in the wake of the Palm Sunday outburst of tornadoes that caused $237 million damage, left 248 persons dead and 5,000 injured, had another aim: finding more victims.

In Indiana, where 141 persons were battered to death by twisters, officials and volunteers combed through wreckage in a hunt for more bodies.

Describe Twisters Playing Deadly Game

COLDWATER, Mich. (AP) — The tragedy which struck a 10-mile-long corridor south of here was almost beyond human endurance. Not one — but two — tornadoes raked the area within 30 minutes.

"The first had us reeling," said Branch County Sheriff Keith Wilhelm. "The second knocked us out."

The deadly game of follow-the-leader was played by the twisters down a two-mile-wide corridor on Palm Sunday.

Two Coldwater Lake resorts were wrecked, cars were tossed from a highway as far as 200 feet and a house trailer wound up 50 feet out in the lake.

When it was all over, the county had 20 dead, and at least 200 injured.

Even amid the death and destruction there was something to be thankful for.

The toll of dead and injured at the resorts — Pearl Beach and Crystal Beach — "probably would have been terrible two months from now," said Sheriff Wilhelm. "At this time of year most of the cottages are vacant."

Erwin Feller, a member of the Michigan State Fair Board, and his wife were in their home at Pearl Beach when the first tornado demolished their guest house.

The couple ran out to survey the damage and spotted an injured woman lying on the beach, bleeding badly. They did what they could to help.

"Then the second one came along," Feller said, "and smashed our own house."

Juel Weigh, a Branch County sheriff's deputy, was en route to check on the situation after the first twister hit. As he neared the lake, his car was snatched up by the second and demolished.

Weigh was sucked out by the wind and rolled 75 feet, suffering minor injuries.

New Assassination Law

At the time of the Kennedy assassination it came as a profound shock to many Americans that the murder of a president was not a federal crime. It still is not, but a bill sent to Congress would change this. It would be hard to find any rational grounds for opposing this measure. Its enactment would remedy an obvious shortcoming in our system of law enforcement.

The bill, submitted by the administration as an outgrowth of the Warren Commission's report, would make it a federal crime to assault, kidnap or assassinate a president, vice president or anyone next in line of succession. It also would apply to a president-elect or vice president-elect. The penalty for kidnapping or murdering a president would be death or life imprisonment. Assault would be punished with up to 15 years in jail. Rewards of up to $100,000 for capture of an assassin could be offered by the attorney general.

This is a sensible change in our present setup. It would give federal law enforcement officers the authority to arrest and prosecute, with the provision that in the event of a conflict between state and federal authority, federal officers would take charge. This is as it ought to be in a crime involving the nation's chief executive. As Attorney General Katzenbach said in presenting the bill, the Kennedy assassination "focused attention on an anomaly in federal law: it is not a federal crime to assassinate the president." The anomaly should be corrected without delay.

Cold Cash Cools Arabs

Fears that West Germany's recognition of Israel would polarize the Middle Eastern countries and lead to a mass shift of sentiment toward Moscow appear to have been exaggerated.

Two myths—that hatred of Israel dominates all Arab thinking and that Gamel Abdel Nasser dominates all Arabs—may have been exploded.

So far, only two countries have indicated they will follow Nasser's lead and recall their ambassadors from Bonn. They are Yemen and Iraq.

According to some sources, this spotty reaction may be because Libya, for instance, sells almost half its oil to West Germany. Saudi Arabia also sells to Bonn, while Jordan is the recipient of large-scale German aid. Other countries don't want to jeopardize their economic relations with the Common Market.

Syria is dickering for an $87 million loan from Germany. In contrast, Iraq has announced that a $140-million dam will be built in that country by Russia.

It is not, it appears, that the reluctant Arabs oppose Israel the less but that they value their own economic well-being the more.

Dear Ann:

Spots Phony Letter

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't consider me crazy for asking you this but I need help badly and you are my only hope.

My mother is bald. My father has a very heavy head of hair. My older brother is rapidly losing his hair and will soon be bald—like my mother.

I am a circus acrobat. Hanging by my hair is part of my act. My hair seems to be the same heavy type that father has, but at times I become depressed worrying about the possibility that perhaps my hair will fall out like my mother's.

Should I change professions before it is too late? Thank you for your kind consideration.

WORRIED

Dear Worried: Don't be a coward and change professions, even if you should detect signs of baldness. Stick with it. Bill yourself as the world's only balding acrobat who hangs by his hair. And please—don't chicken out and use a net. I'd like to get rid of you characters who write phony letters—and the sooner the better.

Dear Ann Landers: Easter will soon be here and I would like to express my views on something that has been bothering me since last year when I attended an Easter Sunday brunch at the home of friends.

These friends have three children under six years of age. As an Easter gift the parents gave their youngsters some baby chicks dyed shades of pink, blue and green. The children were squeezing, choking and torturing the baby chicks without realizing what they were doing.

The two-year-old threw the little pink chick against the wall as if it were a rubber ball. The mother picked the chick up and said quietly, "You mustn't do that, dear." She gave the chick back to the child who proceeded to choke it. I could not bear to watch any longer so I left.

Please, Ann, say something in your column about giving very young children live pets to play with.—S. O. S.

Dear S. O. S.: Dyeing and selling baby chicks is illegal in some states. (Illinois for one.) The penalty, however, is not stiff enough to deter a pet shop owner who wants to engage in the practice. The law reads: "A fine of not less than $5 and not more than $200, and confiscation of the chicks."

The Anti-Cruelty Society would like to discourage the sale of chicks as toys. Aside from the fact that most youngsters unwittingly abuse them, chicks need warmth (about 90 degree temperature) and most homes are too cold for their survival.

Dear Ann Landers: My uncle was buried last Thursday. When I tell you we have at least 100 relatives in this town I am not exaggerating.

This uncle was a nice person and everyone liked him. His wife is a living, breathing chunk of ice who could hold a convention of all her friends in a telephone booth.

After the funeral my husband and I went to the cemetery and then home. We learned the next day the whole crowd was invited to my aunt's house for dinner. We were the only ones who weren't there. I am very put out. Why would she do this? Even in her grief she managed to insult me. Please comment.—PUT OUT

Dear Out: Relatives and close friends customarily gather at the home of the bereaved after a funeral. It is not a party. Nobody gets invited. They just go.

Relatives, friends and neighbors usually assume the responsibility of bringing, preparing and serving the food. Your letter is a good example of how people sometimes blame others when the fault lies with themselves.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

State Legislatures Need Drastic Overhaul—NOW

By BRUCE BISSAT

Washington Correspondent

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—State legislatures in this country appear to be threatened as much by their own internal weaknesses as by the powerful pull of federal centralization.

They are shot through with flaws which lead some experts in state affairs to question their capacity to deal with this era's engulfing wave of new problems. Need for reform is becoming urgent.

With complexities spilling all over the landscape, 30 of the state legislatures meet only every other year for fixed periods of 30 to 90 days.

In 34 of the 50 states the average yearly salary for legislators is a measly $2,500. New Hampshire pays $100 a man. A Maryland lawmaker figures his salary, measured against work-time, comes to about 50 cents an hour. Here and there secretaries make more money than their legislative bosses.

Lawmaking at the state level is consequently a part-time job. According to one appraiser, only New York and California come close to giving the occupation decent status. Says he: "The job should be a vocation, not an avocation."

The legislators' part-time status produces an often-gravely harmful offshoot—conflict of interest between the public business and the lawmakers' private labors.

Expert judgment is that few states have the laws they need to regulate conflicts of interest.

Insufficient pay is far from the only sign of skimpy support for state legislatures. They lack trained staff personnel to research issues properly—and even stenographic help to handle their mail.

Relatively few states provide them with private office space unless they happen to be committee chairmen. Usually the lawmakers use communal office space or operate from their chamber desks, the capitol corridors, even telephone booths.

This hardly seems the way to validate the old anti-Washington battle cry that "lawmakers at the state and local level can do a better job of handling the nation's problems as they arise in the field."

Even state legislative committees are cramped for space. The Oregon legislature has 40 committees but just 14 committee rooms.

Most of these state legislatures are victimized by decrepit state constitutions which have not been modernized for decades or longer.

Aside from the five states which were added to the flag in this century, only seven—Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey and Virginia—have adopted new constitutions since 1900. Virginia's (1902) is the oldest of these, Michigan's (1964) the youngest and most thoroughly modern.

The constitutions of Vermont, New Hampshire and Massachusetts go back to the late 18th century. Another four fall in the first half of the 19th century.

One seasoned student of state matters observes:

"It should not be thought that state legislators like the mess and squalor they are in. The record is full of their efforts to get out of it.

"But their performance and their image is so bad it destroys most efforts at reform. The public simply has no confidence in them."

The circle, then, is vicious. Voters frequently decline to approve longer and more regular sessions and other changes. Their attitude: "If they never met, we'd be better off."

Some progress is nevertheless occurring. Twenty legislatures meet annually now, as against just four a generation ago. Constitutional reform is being pushed in several states.

Yet the race "against Washington" demands improvement at a pace far faster than presently evident.

Henry Hudson entered the Hudson River on Sept. 12, 1609.

Only in looking back over the past three months can it be realized how great is the silence that has settled down over almost everyone in Washington except Johnson.

There's comparative quietude even in Congress which has been outdoing itself to give Johnson what he wants.

Southern Democrats have complained about his bill to assure Negroes' voting rights but even they seem less noisy, as if reconciled to the reality that they will be overrun by the rest of the Congress in filling Johnson's requests.

In one area—this country's policy in Viet Nam—Johnson, and therefore everyone connected with it, was almost speechless except for a few repeated phrases until criticism climbed about the silence.

To offset that, Johnson talked to the nation last week. But foreign affairs are the one field where he has had least experience. When he feels more sure of himself, he'll probably talk twice as much as he does now.

In the former silver boom town of Georgetown, Colo., in spruce and pine clad mountains we stopped at the historic Hotel Paris (now a museum). The hotel, owned by Louis Dupuy, a noted French chef during the silver mining days, was luxurious and for the most part excluded women. Once in 1879 Dupuy served a regal dinner for Jay Gould and his eight millionaire guests who together represented $200,000,000.

Dupuy often specialized in racks of venison. Food expert Evadna Hamersley, of the American Lamb Council, pointing to the large ranges in Dupuy's kitchen, said that today he would probably offer racks of lamb to his silver dollar guests. Or else a crown roast. This is the prima donna of lamb cuts, she explained, and is made with at least two rib roasts (rack) with backbone removed, then shaped in a crown and sewed with twine. The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—The one voice that drowns out all else in Washington is President Johnson's. His Cabinet members sound like thin echoes of him and even Congress is muted.

This is an extremely unusual year in Washington—for the absence of feuds, fights and flaps—although it may be overlooked in the bang-bang way Johnson is getting things done and attracting attention.

After almost 17 months of exposure to Johnson in the White House the nation is getting used to its bouncy, highly energetic President whose performance Monday was more or less typical of his activity any day.

He flew back from Texas; opened the baseball season by throwing out not one ball but two; stopped off on his way back to the White House to lay a wreath on the Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial which was dedicated Monday, and Monday night entertained one-third of the Senate again at a combination reception and idea-swap in the White House.

Tonight he is having a 5 o'clock reception for the congressional leaders who put through his aid-to-education bill Monday night; at 6 o'clock he will have a reception and idea-swap with the second third of the Senate (again); and Wednesday night he will have a reception and idea-swap with the third third of the Senate (again).

Johnson manages to stay in print practically every day by doing something or saying something, although the general public has no idea of what a talker the President is.

He has many, many sessions with newsmen, singly or in groups, with the understanding he won't be quoted directly or, depending on what he is saying, at all. In some of these group sessions he has talked as much as three hours.

His complete domination of the executive branch of the government, at least, can be illustrated by what two men above all others say, or rather what they don't say: Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

Rusk is the quiet, technician type who apparently expects the top man to do the talking anyway, which is quite a contrast with President Dwight D. Eisenhower's secretary of state, John Foster Dulles.

Rusk was a pale figure even under President John F. Kennedy but under Johnson he has become almost shadowy, saying hardly anything, and when he does talk it's mostly the obvious, or a banality, or a repetition of something Johnson has said or some line Johnson has laid down.

This is true of all the Cabinet members who, when they do have to say something, do it with a minimum of commotion and disappear off stage again.

Humphrey, twice as ebullient as Johnson when he was in the Senate and before he became vice president, has been making a lot of talks to various groups, including an international assembly festival, but is strictly a salesman for what Johnson calls the "Great Society" or for whatever else Johnson is pushing.

Only in looking back over the past three months can it be realized how great is the silence that has settled down over almost everyone in Washington except Johnson.

There's comparative quietude even in Congress which has been outdoing itself to give Johnson what he wants.

Southern Democrats have complained about his bill to assure Negroes' voting rights but even they seem less noisy, as if reconciled to the reality that they will be overrun by the rest of the Congress in filling Johnson's requests.

In one area—this country's policy in Viet Nam—Johnson, and therefore everyone connected with it, was almost speechless except for a few repeated phrases until criticism climbed about the silence.

To offset that, Johnson talked to the nation last week. But foreign affairs are the one field where he has had least experience. When he feels more sure of himself, he'll probably talk twice as much as he does now.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Several Causes Known For Curvature of Spine

By Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—What causes curvature of the spine? Would a person who had this be bedridden?

A—Curvature of the spine may be lateral (as seen from the back this would look like a tall S or C) which is called scoliosis, s-way back (lordosis) or a forward curvature (humpback or kyphosis). These deformities may be caused by a disease or weakness of the muscles, pulling the spine in a given direction as occurs in such diseases as poliomyelitis or muscular dystrophy. Or it may be a developmental defect due to poor posture or the cause may be undetermined.

Scoliosis also occurs in persons who, for one reason or another, have one leg that is longer than the other. The degree of curvature may be mild or severe but in no case would the victim be bedridden because of the curvature.

Q—I am 30 and have been permanently deformed from the draft because of scoliosis to the right in the thoracic spine. Can it be corrected?

A—You have a curving of your spine to the right in the chest area. Some persons with this deformity carry one shoulder a little higher than the other. The condition usually develops before adolescence, but when it is slight, it goes unnoticed until a chest X-ray is taken. It produces no symptoms but such a back is usually weaker than a normal back and that is the reason for rejection by the armed forces.

When the condition is discovered before full growth is attained, braces and corrective exercises may be used but the results are not impressive. Surgical correction and the application of a plaster cast are required if the degree of deformity seems to be increasing but in anyone who has attained full growth treatment is not advisable.

Q—is a severe nervous illness the same as a mental illness? If not, in which category does schizophrenia belong?

A—They are not the same. Examples of severe nervous illness include such diseases as poliomyelitis, multiple sclerosis, brain hemorrhage (stroke), brain and spinal cord tumors, beriberi and pellagra (two vitamin deficiency diseases), some forms of epilepsy, brain damage due to lead, chronic alcoholism and other poisonings.

Schizophrenia (split personality) is a mental disease and takes various forms. The cause is unknown and it is difficult to cure.

The Mature Parent

Don't Delay Confessions

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: My sister's husband is driving her into a nervous breakdown over their son. The boy took a job last summer which he kept instead of going back to high school. Then just before Christmas he got fired. His father blames my sister because he won't look for another job or return to school. He says she has spoiled him so all he wants to do is hang around the house all day and run around all night with his rowdy friends. Between her own worry over the boy and her husband's nagging, she doesn't know what to do.

ANSWER: Her husband's "nagging"? His flattery, you mean.

Oh yes, that's what his accusations represent. When one parent tries to saddle the other one with the whole blame for a child's problem, his accusations are a confession of his own moral weakness and express his confidence in the other's moral strength. His charges of total blame in fact represent the appeal: "Lift all sense of responsibility from me for this problem! My self-confidence is so feeble that it can't survive the knowledge that I have contributed to this child's problem. As you are so much stronger than I am, you must carry the whole load of responsibility for it—and so strengthen my delusion that I am a faultless person incapable of any neglect of this child, or of any training mistakes that might suggest I have failed in my parental obligations."

If your sister cannot hear this confession of moral weakness in her husband's accusations, it is because her own self-accusation defends her. She herself is so fascinated by her irrational blame that she's entirely to blame for this boy's behavior that she can't rear back from his father's accusations to know them for what they are.

My personal view is that everybody in this family—father, mother and son—need break downs.

And what I mean by "break downs" is descent from their high horses. First, here's a youngster whose pride is so outraged by one job failure that he can't face the world again either by returning to school or by seeking another job. Here's a father whose pride in faultlessness is so obsessing that he goes into panic at the very thought he might have contributed to the boy's poor attitude. And here's his wife, so greedy for responsibility that she assumes it all as though she were the runner of the universe.

There appears to be a conscience which severely punishes persons who do not punish themselves fallible and human" wrote C. G. Jung, the noted psychologist.

I hope that this family does not long delay their confessions.

Police Seek Duo Who Took $1,400 In Cass Robbery

BEARDSTOWN — Chief of Police Carl Wubker said here Monday that he hoped to introduce a new phase in investigating crime in Beardstown in connection with the robbery which occurred at Schmitt Memorial hospital here Saturday.

From descriptions given by hospital employees of two men sought in the case, Wubker says he hopes to obtain "drawings" of the suspects. "We have an expert coming in to help us on this," Wubker said.

Cash in the amount of $330 and $1100 in checks was taken from the hospital safe about 6 p.m. Saturday by one of two men who said they were waiting in the lobby to confer with a patient. When Mrs. James Varner, office worker, left the office for a time, one of the men looted the safe.

Mrs. Varner, Marion Swan and Mrs. Helen Ainsworth were among the hospital employees who spoke to the pair and it is expected they may supply sufficient descriptions to inspire an artist in making drawings of the suspects, Wubker said.

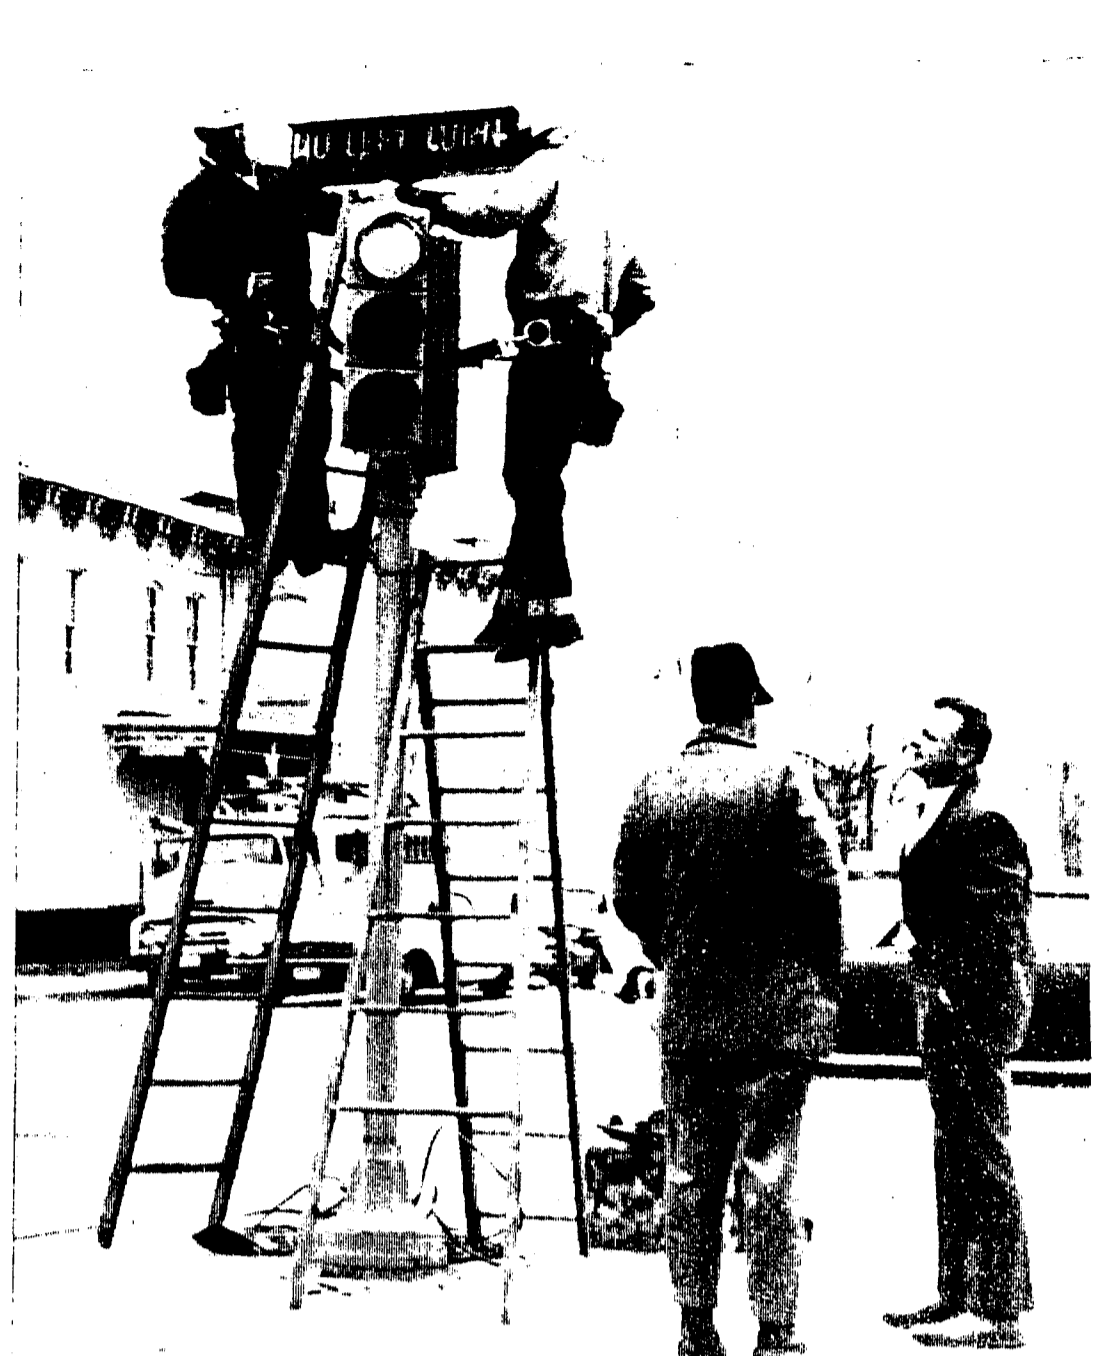

Tickets Issued

Randy Greer and Steve Maxwell, both 22 and of Rushville, face charges in connection with an accident here Sunday when Maxwell and a local police officer were injured.

Greer was ticketed on a traffic violation charge of failure to reduce speed, and Maxwell was charged with disorderly conduct at the hospital where he was taken for treatment of injuries.

Officer Robert (Moe) Genesal, driving the police car, was also hurt when the 1964 Plymouth and a new 1965 Chevrolet driven by Greer crashed at 5th and Jefferson streets. Maxwell still is in the hospital recovering from facial cuts and other injuries.

Chief of Police Wubker said that a ticket was issued Maxwell for abusive talk after he was taken to the hospital.

NO LEFT TURN signs were installed at the intersection of South Main and College Avenue Monday afternoon by members of the City Light Department. The lights were installed and in operation about 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. Supt. Robert Jameson, at far right, is shown discussing the installation with members of the line crew during the installation. The signs will regulate traffic east and westbound. Left turns will be permitted for north-south traffic until more lights are installed.

Customers Eat Two Miles Of Flapjacks At Kiwanis Project

Crowds in Jacksonville yesterday at the annual Kiwanis Pancake and Sausage Day, held from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m., consumed enough of the round syrup-covered cakes and spiced pork to reach from Nichols Park to the new Capitol Records plant.

According to chairman Bill Deem, 3,288 persons came through the lines to eat more than 6,500 sausage patties and over 13,000 pancakes.

"This is a new record in attendance for the day, and we certainly served a great deal more food than ever before. We were thankful for the weather which must have helped whet more appetites," Deem said.

The 119 Jacksonville Kiwanians have been promoting their one fund-raising event for more than a month, and yesterday they provided the labor to successfully complete the day. Proceeds are being used to sponsor more than a dozen youth and community projects.

By the time the day had ended, the crowds had also consumed 225 gallons of coffee, 200 gallons of milk, 396 bottles of syrup, 10,800 margarine patties, and 120 pounds of sugar.

Assisting Deem were vice-chairman Don Fiedler, club president Jack Gillespie, and other supervisors: tickets, Ralph Troyer; kitchen, Raoul Soume; dining room, A. W. Applebee; set-up, Bill Buchanan; purchasing, Dick Cody; and clean-up, Tom Busey.

Two hundred sixty-nine tickets were purchased at the door, and many persons bought additional sausage to take home, according to the chairman.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Harlow" No. 1 — or is it No. 2? — has been shooting on the sound stages. If you were quick about dropping in, you could see a new kind of show business.

This is the electronovision version, and it seems to be a combination of live television, theater in the round and the roller derby.

Electronovision uses four or more cameras simultaneously, their input being cut by the director as the scene progresses, the same as a television director selects his angles on the spot.

"We'll shoot 'Harlow' in six days and at the end we'll have a completely edited movie," said an electronovision aide.

What's more, they expect to book the film into 600 Western theaters May 12, a month ahead of the Joseph E. Levine "Harlow," play it for two weeks and switch to 700 theaters in the East.

Such enterprise deserves a look-in, so I dropped by Desilu

Cahuenga studios to watch the progress of filming.

TV veteran Alex Segal was directing a scene in which Harlow (Carol Lynley) storms into the office of Paul Bern (Hurd Hatfield) and meets her future hero (Efrem Zimbalist Jr.). The latter is one of the few figures to bear a fictitious name; his obvious prototype, William Powell, doesn't happen to be dead.

After a few rehearsals, Segal disappeared from the scene and his disembodied voice continued directing from an offstage control center. The cameras use video tape which is later converted to film. Between one of the lengthy shootings, I caught a word with Miss Lynley.

Miss Lynley looked older than her usual screen self in a Harlow-platinum wig and a whitish makeup which made her start whenever she passed a mirror.

"I'm not trying to impersonate Harlow," she declared, "just give an impression."

Had she ever heard of Harlow before the recent revival?

"Of course not," she replied. "I'm only 23. And I am one of the few (actresses) who can say that and mean it."

She raced off to perform the scene again.

In a dressing room offstage, I found Ginger Rogers, who is playing Harlow's mama Jean and enjoying it. I suspected she was probably the only one connected with either "Harlow" who knew her.

"I certainly am," she said firmly. "Sure I knew Jean and liked her. I met her through Bill Powell when we were making 'Star of Midnight' together. I used to go up to his house for dinner, and Jean would be there. She adored him, needed his stability. And her gaiety brightened his life."

"She was always gay, always sparkling. When she entered a room you couldn't keep your eyes off her. Maybe that gaiety was to hide the hurt she had known, I don't know. But I do know that she loved life and lived it to the fullest."

down in history so I am saving all of the newspapers with important events for my children to have when they get to high school. It will be much more interesting for them to read first-hand accounts of these things and see the pictures than to just get brief facts from a history book. My mother did this for us and I want to continue the same good idea. —SANDY

"Don't underestimate Barcello. His idea of what happened is very close to the truth. His version puts Cyn in that room with Howie, not Di, and some other woman in the car with you, probably Di, but not Cyn. The ironic part is that in all his theorizing Barcello hasn't once mentioned Di. But he'll get around to her."

"He has no proof." David's anger, an anger born of fear, was flooding back. "Not a particle!"

"He knows you're protecting somebody."

Cynthia came closer to Clay. "Now do you understand why we wanted to keep it from you? Hasn't it been bad enough that only the two of us knew she killed a man? Doesn't this make you an accomplice... technically?"

"It's high time we heard Di's story. We'd better have it out with her right now."

"With Larry there? Don't be a fool!" David squared his shoulders, again taking a grip on himself. "Clay, if Di is ever brought to trial she can plead self-defense. There'll be weeks of ugly publicity and scandal, but she'll probably get off. Let's pray it will never go half that far. If of yours," Clay said quietly. "We're lucky we can keep her entirely clear of the law. Even so, there's something else to consider—the probability of a broken marriage," David added heavily. "Certainly I'll have to live with Di. But not until she's alone."

"All right," Cay reminded himself. "You mentioned having a confusing talk with Di on the phone that same night."

What about it?"

"She was shaken up, naturally, especially after I told her how David had found Howie dead. I made her understand that nobody was to know I'd told her about the accident. Also, I warned her not to try to tell me anything over the phone. But there was something she had to say, and she wasn't very coherent in saying it. First it was, 'Cyn, I don't think I did it.'"

"Those were her exact words? She doesn't think she did it?"

"Yes, I warned her again, not over the phone, but she insisted and said, 'I think he was all right when I left.'"

Clay turned to David. "What are we to understand from that?"

"I don't know!" David was plainly suffering over the uncertainty. In turn he quoted Diane: "I think he was all right when I left." Does that make sense? If so, I can't see how. If Howie was all right, why would he have let her leave him stranded there?"

They stood looking at one another.

"Apparently you're going to stick with this amnesia act," Clay said quietly. "What else can I do?"

"I've already told you that Barcello puts Cyn in that room with Howie. You can speak up and say she wasn't there."

"But I can't! Clay, I'm sorry, I can't tell you how sorry I am, but don't you see? You certainly can't expect me to ing a confusing talk with Di on the phone that same night."

"No," Clay's face was cold and set. "No, I can't—although you expect Cyn to go right on covering Di and you."

David's face flickered as if he'd been slapped by an invisible hand. Perhaps he hadn't fully realized until now that Cynthia and Clay could not help him without hurting themselves. Abruptly, looking sick-hearted, he strode to the door and let himself out.

"Clay," Cynthia asked softly then. "What would you do in David's shoes?"

It was his turn to be at a loss for an answer. He looked at her blankly.

Clay and Cynthia listened to his car as he drove off. There was a quality of finality in the sound. It seemed to declare that rebukes could not matter, that argument would be futile, that David had taken his stand immovably.

"One very good thing anyway," she said. "Nobody's in the way any more. I mean between you and me."

DEAR POLLY — So many things happening today will go

DEAR POLLY — My wife and I have a clock that was a wedding present 19 years ago. When it became very noisy I took it to one repairman who refused to even work on it because of its age and another worked on it twice with no appreciable results. On the advice of a friend who had had a similar experience, I removed the works and with a toothpick applied a few drops of cigarette lighter fluid to some of the pivotal points. The results were most satisfactory. It has run smoothly and quietly for several months. I was also amazed at the way the lighter fluid cleaned the type on a 40-year-old typewriter. —A MALE READER

GIRLS AND GENTLEMEN FRIENDS — The lighter fluid worked wonders on the type of my typewriter and being principally naphtha it seems logical that it would clean the works of a clock. I would only advise such a home remedy in cases where professionals have bowed out or where the home tinkerer really knows what he is doing. Not everyone could get a clock back together again. —POLLY

GOOD GRIEF AGAIN
—MAYOR—

How did you justify your unauthorized 20 month term as acting fire chief, when the city council never confirmed you, and you had no experience whatsoever for the job? You received the same salary as a full time, fully qualified and experienced fire chief. Was this justified, Mr. Mayor?

Our candidate, Fred Gray, says:

Qualified personnel are vitally essential to the proper function of city government. Our goal must be to appoint trained and qualified personnel, preferably from the ranks of our own departments.

Flatbush Beatnik Kid Makes Good-

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Twelve years ago Barbra Streisand was a beatnik kid who made 50 cents an hour as a baby sitter. Today her income is nearer a million dollars a year.
The onetime Flatbush gamin has become a show world empress.

The girl who once looked like a skinny Jewish gnome now has the grace and imperious profile of a Babylonian queen. Instead of a walkup flat she dwells in a Central Park duplex that has nine glittering chandeliers. Once she dressed like a 1925 mannequin in a lower East Side thrift shop. Now few socialites could match her wardrobe. But as her 23rd birthday nears, Barbra finds herself still basically unchanged where she feels it counts most — inside.

"No one thing has made life very different for me," she said. "In a way I'm disappointed that it hasn't."

"What is suffering to one person is joy to another," she said in her theater dressing room from which hangs a 10th glittering crystal chandelier, the symbol of her stardom.

"I went through a lot of adolescent pangs that were critical to me, but I never had to scrub floors or do anything like that."

"I was so gawky no one would hire me as a model. So I worked as a cashier in a Chinese restaurant for $1 an hour and all the chow mein I could eat. I loved that."

"I also licked envelopes for a printing firm for $45.17 a week — and saved $15 of it. I always was saving. The main thing I didn't want to be was a typist. I let my fingernails grow long so I couldn't type."

In addition to her stage earnings, royalties from phonograph albums and other sources of income, Barbra has a television contract guaranteeing her $5 million over the next 10 years.

"Any amount of money over $50,000 confuses me. I feel you can live as well on $25,000 a year as on a million. You can ride in only one limousine at a time," she said.

"I allot myself only $25 a week, and I never spend it all. I like to pay in cash. It gives me a great feeling."

"When I pay by check, I feel like I'm getting it for nothing — because it's just paper."

Maturity has somewhat tamed Barbra's prankishness with which she used to call attention to herself. She remains a loner, given to introspection. Her dark blue eyes smolder with electric intensity.

Here are her likes and dislikes:

"I like Chantilly lace and avocados, scary movies and Bartok's violin concerto. Gardenias and enameled snuffboxes, gingerbread and lavender roses, Rembrandt paintings and Thomas Mann's novels. Good shoes, the feel of fur blankets, the smell of Italian cooking, studying languages and talking to doctors: steak Diane for breakfast, the color of wine but not the taste of it: Sundays, when nothing is going on and everything has stopped."

"I dislike fake fur, arriving early to an appointment, crowded streets, dirty ashtrays, newspapers lying around, candy with gooey centers, eggs, overcooked food, opportunistic people and ladies who smell like flowers instead of like ladies."

Helen Hartline, Mr. McPherson, Wed In Greene

WHITE HALL — Mrs. Helen Hartline and Mr. McPherson were united in marriage in a ceremony performed April third at the home of the bride's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wyatt.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Hazel Hiatt of White Hall and the groom is the son of Roy McPherson, also of White Hall.

Mrs. Wyatt and Robert Pinkerton, son of the bride, attended the couple. The bride wore a brown wool knit suit with beige accessories and Mrs. Wyatt wore gray wool with brown accessories. The bride's flowers were white carnations and Mrs. Wyatt's corsage was red carnations.

The mother of the bride attended. She wore a blue suit with matching accessories and a corsage of red carnations.

A reception was held at the Wyatt home following the ceremony. A tiered wedding cake baked by the bride's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Robert Pinkerton, was served.

Finds Rare Pictures Of Wright Brothers

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Crane operator Wesley Carter looked into the pile of rotting, yellowed newspapers, then shouted to his fellow wreckers to stop work.

He had found negatives of some rare pictures of the Wright brothers, the Dayton bicycle mechanics who pioneered aviation.

Carter found the negatives in the ceiling and second floor of a building being wrecked for an urban renewal project.

"I picked them up and the newspapers disintegrated into dust," Carter said. "Then I looked at one of the negatives. It was a picture of one of the first airplanes built by the Wright brothers."

Carter and his coworkers then took the ceiling apart piece by piece, seeking other relics. But all they found was a 1918 dime. Ivonette Wright Miller, a niece of the brothers who has Orville Wright's pictures and diaries, recognized the photo subjects, but said she had never seen these pictures before.

They were taken, she said, in 1910 when Orville and Wilbur Wright set up a training camp for fliers near Montgomery, Ala., for a time.

Carter, who is from Batavia, Creek, Mich., describes himself as "a nut about antiques and museums."

There were more than 100 negatives, but most were blank or too deteriorated to print.

One printable negative showed Orville Wright with two other showed four early pupils of the Wrights. Others showed a 1907 model plane in flight.

MR. OPPONENT: WHERE WERE YOU WHEN ???
The Industrial Corporation was formed. Did you attend any organizational meetings. Did you show any active interest by working on any committees, fund drives, or otherwise to bring industry to Jacksonville . . . Where were YOU?
WHY THE SUDDEN INTEREST NOW !!!

MR. OPPONENT: WHERE WERE YOU WHEN ???
The Merchants Groups organized and planned shopping promotions to bring more people to shop and improve the economy of Jacksonville. YOU, as a merchant, should have been a leader among these groups. Where were YOU?
WHY THE SUDDEN INTEREST NOW !!!

MR. OPPONENT: WHERE WERE YOU WHEN ???
The Mayor, Byron Holkenbrink, personally asked you to attend an Industrial Development Meeting in Peoria in the spring of 1964. Twenty of the Nation's leading Industrialists told us of the things they look for and expect from a Community before deciding to re-locate. This information is invaluable in conducting our Jacksonville Area Industrial Corporation. Where were You?
WHY THE SUDDEN INTEREST NOW !!!

Mr. Opponent, can you honestly say that you have taken an active part and have been a leader in community development, or a supporter of progressive city government the last four years while you have been an alderman? It is hard for many Jacksonville citizens to understand why you had no apparent community interest then, and claim to be so vitally interested now, in the last few weeks.

WHY THE SUDDEN INTEREST NOW ???

NEW YORK (AP) — Weather can make or break more economic planning than most professional planners care to admit.

obvious. But the aftermath can be felt far and wide. Industry suffers as well as agriculture. Trade may be affected for months to come.

In one-crop sections — be they crop citrus or wheat or vegetables — a bad drought or flood or late freeze can paralyze the entire regional economy.

In industrial areas bad storms can cripple production just as a strike can. Plant destruction, inability of workers to reach the factory, cutting off shipments of supplies to the mills or of finished goods from the mills — all can topple the local economy for a time.

And if the area hit is large enough, and the industries hit important enough, the effect on the national economy shows up quickly in the statistics.

A cold, late spring can leave merchants with large stocks of unsold finery after Easter. And a milder than usual autumn also can pinch retail sales in the all-important final quarter of the year.

A dearth of snow this last winter crippled the business of many ski resorts in the north-east.

A stormy winter in the South, coupled with a milder than usual one in the North, can cause loud cries of anguish from winter resort owners.

are curbing some of the flood threats, and at the same time storing water as a counteraction to droughts.

Weather forecasting is improving. Communities often can be put on alert for hurricanes and tornadoes and thus escape some of the damage that a surprise visit causes.

Communications are better now, so that word of trouble is learned quickly, and relief can be sped fast to the stricken. Transportation can be restored more quickly than in earlier times. Factories, homes and community services can be repaired or replaced much faster today.

Relief agencies are more efficient. Government aid is more quickly available. The general prosperity has built up a vigorous economy on which the stricken areas can call.

But weather itself, be it good or bad, will go right on making or breaking plans for individuals, communities, perhaps the general economy. Even the computers, though they may be able to run a factory, can't stop a storm.

Yesterday's article gave a horrible example of a takeout double when a player held most of his strength in the opponent's bid suit. In general the more cards you hold in the suit your opponent has bid the less desirable it is to make a takeout double.

South has a fine opening heart call. East has opened one diamond. Should South pass, overall, or double?

The answer is that he should overcall with one heart. How will his partner know whether South has a good overcall or a bad one. He won't, but he doesn't have to know. North should raise the one heart overcall to two.

In the early thirties the raise of an overcall indicated a strong hand. Since that time it has merely indicated the sort of hand with which you would raise an opening bid.

Four hearts turns out to be a cinch contract. In fact, after the diamond opening South should have no trouble making five odd. He wins the diamond with the ace or queen as required, cashes the other high diamond, ruffs a diamond in dummy, returns to his hand with the king of clubs, ruffs his last diamond and eventually loses two spade tricks.

With this hand the double would not have hurt South at all. He could have gone to two hearts after his partner responded one spade. North would have raised that to three and South would have still reached game but if North did not have any heart support the double might well have started North and South on their way to real trouble while the overcall could not have hurt.

2♥ Pass 4♥ Pass
5♣ Pass ?
You, South, hold:

What do you do?
A—This is a tough one. Six hearts is the recommended call, but if you bid only five hearts you are not making a serious underbid.

MISSIONARY FINED FOR WRITING POEM ON POLICE DOGS

SALISBURG, Rhodesia (AP) — Lester Keith Weiner, 30, an American missionary teacher from Chicago, was fined $70 Monday for writing a poem critical of police dogs.

Weiner had pleaded innocent in magistrate's court to a charge he violated the security laws of this self-governing African colony.

In the poem, which appeared in an independent political magazine, he referred to the dogs as "well trained to hate the smell of black." The magistrate ruled this would "likely engender feelings of hostility toward the police."

Weiner told the court the dogs created bad race relations and thus his poem "made a definite contribution toward better relations."

A teacher at the Mount Selinda mission at Chipinga, Weiner has been in Rhodesia nine years. He is a member of the American Board Mission, a branch of the United Church of Christ.

field, said almost 2.9 million motorists failed to renew their licenses before they expired in a 1961-63 survey period. The three-year licenses are renewable on a driver's birthday but many motorists overlook it.

The measure, forwarded to the Senate on a 154-1 vote, carries a $300,000 appropriation for administering the act.

The House also advanced to the Senate a $350,000 appropriation for a state survey of the Wabash River Basin and to construct improvements.

Rejected by the House was a measure to appropriate $3,000 for construction of a statue of the late Dr. George Zeller at the new Zeller Mental Health Clinic in Peoria.

The measure had more than enough votes for passage until Rep. John Parkhurst of Peoria, Republican minority leader, objected.

"I believe that economy begins at home," said Parkhurst, a member of the bipartisan economy bloc. He said he believed the naming of the clinic after Zeller was honor enough for the pioneer in mental health.

A measure to prohibit the distribution of handbills, circulars and other advertising matter in Chicago was called back from passage to amendment stage when Rep. William E. Pollack, R-Chicago, protested that it would prevent door-to-door distribution of political leaflets.

Grainger and his two companions were seized near the village of Tan My. They were traveling in a Jeep when it was stopped by a band of armed Viet Cong.

The Filipino, Elpidio Laugico, was released Dec. 29, along with the Vietnamese. He said he had been taken to see Grainger on Dec. 10 and found him manacled and bound in a small cave. He said Grainger appeared to be adequately fed and in good spirits at that time.

The U.S. spokesman said a reconstruction of events since then showed that on Jan. 1 Grainger began a hunger strike which he continued for five days in protest against his captivity. On Jan. 5 Grainger escaped and during the following seven days made his way through a large swampy area. On Jan. 12, he was found by a Viet Cong patrol while he was washing mud off his clothes in a small stream.

The Viet Cong captured him about 9 a.m., and a Viet Cong named Hai shot him twice in cold blood when Grainger refused to accompany him back to captivity, the spokesman said. The Viet Cong took the mortally wounded Grainger to a nearby hamlet, and he died later that day. His body was buried at night and the grave was flattened to conceal its location. The body has not been recovered.

Grainger's wife, Elizabeth, and their four children went to Bangkok, in Thailand, where dependents of American government personnel were evacuated in February. The children range in age from 4 to 11.

Grainger was an Air Force gunner in World War II. He studied sociology and anthropology at Yale and was graduated in 1949. He returned to the Army and during his tour was assigned to economic assistance program and was sent to Phu Yen Province in South Viet Nam in March 1964.

U.S. Marine F4 Phantom jet planes went into action for the first time in South Viet Nam today and hit two concentrations of Viet Cong guerrillas north of the Da Nang air base. U.S. Navy planes from 7th Fleet carriers in the South China Sea also were reported in action today. Their targets were not immediately announced.

Twelve of the supersonic F4s were sent up against Viet Cong positions. Later in the day they were scrambled again after a convoy of Vietnamese armored cars was ambushed by two battalions of Viet Cong north of Da Nang.

There were no reports on the results of the attacks. A Vietnamese spokesman who told of the Skyraider mission said the Thanh Yen bridge had eight spans and was 450 feet long. "Some spans were knocked down," he said.

ceremonies that date back to early Christian times. The English-Latin liturgy which went into effect in November was used for the first time in the United States at a funeral of a cardinal. Also, the chairs of the attending cardinals faced the congregation instead of the altar. This reversal corresponded with the liturgical change under which the celebrant of the Mass faces the worshippers throughout the service.

Archbishop William E. Cousins, who succeeded Cardinal Meyer as Archbishop of Milwaukee, when the then Archbishop Meyer came to Chicago in 1958, delivered the eulogy.

"He was widely acknowledged as possessing qualities of leadership upon which the Church of the future would depend," Archbishop Cousins said of the cardinal.

The cardinal died in Mercy Hospital Friday. He had undergone brain cancer surgery on Feb. 25.

POPE PRAYING FOR VICTIMS, SURVIVORS
VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI said today he is praying for the victims and the survivors of tornadoes in the United States.

The Roman Catholic spiritual ruler expressed his grief and spoke of his prayers in a telegram he sent to Archbishop Egidio Vagnozzi, the apostolic delegate in Washington.

"I think we'll find more bodies," predicted Sheriff Woody L. Caton of Elkhart County, Ind. The tornadoes claimed 65 victims in the county, 45 of them within one square mile.

Similar searches, coupled with vast cleanup operations, took place in Ohio and Michigan, where the grim Sunday twisters claimed 53 and 44 deaths, respectively.

Seven persons were killed in Illinois and three in Wisconsin. A tornado seriously injured an Iowa farmer but no deaths were reported there.

The cleanup operations were hampered by power shortages, damaged communication systems and debris-blocked highways.

There was some looting in Indiana. Michigan reported none of any consequence and Ohio police said there had been none.

More than 100 officers stopped the looting in Marion, Ind., where three cash registers of destroyed stores in a shopping center were cleaned out. Some merchandise also was taken.

The actual amount taken by looters was undetermined but at least $70,000 was in the cash registers when the tornado hit.

Hospitals and families were plagued by the possibility of water shortages and health perils. Many pumping systems failed to operate.

As the search for more twister victims went on, officials in Minnesota battled to contain the Mississippi River, which threatened to overflow at record heights.

Riverfront businesses shut down, employees stayed away from work and school children from school as the flood threat grew in the St. Paul, Minn., area.

At least six persons have been killed and 20,000 made homeless by Minnesota and Wisconsin floods.

The Palm Sunday tornadoes first were sighted in Iowa and then moved to the east, increasing in intensity with every strike.

Some highways remained blocked 36 hours after tornadoes ripped three wide swaths through the central and northern sections of Indiana.

Battered bodies, many in night clothing, packed morgues set up in high school gymnasiums and stores.

"It's as close to hell as I care to be," said one weary newsman who toured the disaster area.

Paul Huffman, a reporter-photographer for the Elkhart (Ind.) Truth, and his wife were driving near Dunlap when a tornado dipped into a trailer camp and killed 45 persons.

"After the funnels passed at freight-train speed, the silence was shocking," Huffman said. "I thought there must be thousands killed. The extent of damage was unbelievable. The 92 house trailers were destroyed. About a dozen were upended."

"The trailers were ripped from their frames, whirled about in the air and sent crashing to the ground," he said.

In northern Ohio, where more than 350 persons were killed or injured by hop-skipping twisters, Gov. James A. Rhodes made a sad tour of the battered areas.

"This is one of Ohio's saddest hours," he said.

The toll in Toledo alone was 13 dead, 178 injured and 90 hospitalized.

"Fantastic. Unbelievable," Gov. Rhodes said. "There is nothing you can compare with it."

The town of Pittsfield, Ohio, counted nine dead. The town had a population of 50. The only thing left standing was a Civil War monument.

The black string of twisters which stabbed into Lower Michigan struck hardest in a domino-like row of counties bordering Indiana and Ohio.

"There was this rumble — like a freight train — and then things started crashing and everybody hit the floor," said Fred Smoes, 28, of Grand Rapids, Mich., who was in a diner in Alpine, Ohio, when the building was hit.

Michigan officials looked to the government for a helping hand as the state sought to qualify for federal disaster aid.

Gov. George Romney, who flew over the 200-mile area where three lines of tornadoes attacked, said it "looked like a battlefield."

The tornadoes played deadly pranks.

The wing of an airplane was torn loose in Goshen, Ind., and dumped at Centerville, Mich., 35 miles away.

A ceremonial headdress from Russville, Ind., was found in Decatur, 70 miles to the northeast.

Two twisting funnels passed on either side of a house in Lincolnton, Ind., but didn't touch it.

At Island Lake, near Crystal Lake, Ill., a board punctured the wall of a living room while a couple watched television.

The Palm Sunday disaster was the worst tornado attack since March 18, 1925, when twisters killed 689 persons in Missouri, Illinois and Indiana.

In 1952, an overnight series of tornadoes which hit St. Louis and other communities took 208 lives in an Arkansas-Tennessee-Missouri attack.

Committee OKs Illinois Primary Move To June

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A bill to move the Illinois primary from May to June was endorsed by a House Elections Subcommittee today after the two major party state chairmen supported the legislation.

Both James A. Ronan and Victor L. Smith, the Democratic and Republican chairmen respectively, said the bill offered a needed reform in bringing about shorter political campaigns.

Smith said the proposal would be a "benefit all the way around not to mention the harassment the public has to go through."

He said a June primary would be the latest held by any state prior to the national presidential conventions and would "keep Illinois in the spotlight."

Gov. Otto Kerner also has endorsed the plan to switch the primary from the second Tuesday in April to the second Tuesday in June. The general election in November would remain unchanged.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. G. William Horsley, R-Springfield, goes to the full House Elections Committee for further action Wednesday.

White House press secretary George E. Reedy said Lodge will leave for the Far East later in the week, after seeing Johnson, and go to Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Formosa, Japan and Korea.

Reedy said the purpose is to keep the governments of these nations informed of American views and to receive their views in return.

Presidential Disability Bill On House Floor

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment to make certain that there will always be a president and a vice president able to carry on their duties comes before the House today.

It is the last major business before the House starts its Easter recess. Approval is expected Wednesday.

The House proposal is similar to one passed in February by the Senate by a 72-0 vote. Should the measure finally clear Congress by two-thirds vote of both branches, it would have to be ratified by 38 states to become part of the Constitution.

The measure is designed to provide for such contingencies as the disability of a president, or a vacancy in the vice presidency when that officer moves into the White House.

In the event a president died and the vice president took over, the new chief executive would nominate a vice president who would take office if confirmed by a majority vote of the Senate and the House.

Should a president become disabled enough not to be able to carry out his duties, he would notify Congress. Then the vice president would act as president until the disability is removed.

However, should a president decline to declare himself incapacitated, the vice president and the majority of the Cabinet could give Congress a written opinion that they believe the president should be relieved of his duties temporarily. The vice president then would assume the powers of acting president.

EASTER BUNNY MAY NEED BOAT, DOGSLED

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Easter bunny will have to make his Southern California deliveries by rowboat and dogsled if the weatherman is correct.

Having enjoyed a bit of sunshine sandwiched between storm fronts Monday, more rain and snow are on the Easter week outlook for this normally warm and dry region.

A new front moving south from Alaska is expected to bring up to three inches of rain before the weekend and more snow to mountain areas already buried under as much as eight feet.

The current series of storms struck March 31 and have been dumping rain ever since, making it the wettest April since 1928.

N. Viet Nam Gives 4-Point Peace Program

TOKYO (AP) — Premier Pham Van Dong of Communist North Viet Nam has laid down a four-point program for peace that calls for exclusion of all foreign interference in both the North and South.

The New China News Agency of Peking, quoting a North Vietnamese broadcast, said the points were made by Dong in a report Monday to the National Assembly in Hanoi, the capital.

The four points made by Dong, the agency said were:

"1. Recognition of the basic national rights of the Viet Nam people: peace, independence, sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity."

"2. Pending peaceful reunification of Viet Nam, while Viet Nam is still temporarily divided into two zones, the military provisions of the 1954 Geneva agreements on Viet Nam must be strictly respected; the two zones must refrain from joining any military alliance with foreign countries, there must be no foreign military bases, troops and military personnel in their respective territory."

"3. The internal affairs of South Viet Nam must be settled by the South Vietnamese people themselves, in accordance with the program of the South Vietnamese National Front for Liberation Viet Cong, without any foreign interference."

"4. The peaceful reunification of Viet Nam is to be settled by the Vietnamese people in both zones, without any foreign interference."

Fear Election Demands Will Stall Steel Talk

By NEIL GILBRIDE

WASHINGTON (AP) — High administration officials reportedly fear that vital steel industry labor negotiations, rapidly approaching a May 1 contract deadline, will be snarled by demands for a new election for the union's presidency.

Informed sources report that President David J. McDonald of the AFL-CIO United Steelworkers of America will seek a new election if he loses his re-election bid to the union's secretary-treasurer, I. W. Abel.

Unofficial tallies have put Abel ahead. The official vote is still being tabulated.

The sources say McDonald's supporters have been dropping strong hints to government officials that he will seek a new election under federal labor law against him.

The union is scheduled to report the official vote count May 1, the day major steel industry contracts expire.

Under the union's constitution, the winner will take office June 1.

Labor Department representatives at the invitation of both sides, have been observing the vote count but have emphasized no action is presently in the works that could lead to a recount.

Expect Easter Buying Record Despite Weather

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Bad weather has put a crimp in Easter buying in many areas but merchants generally are optimistic that their cash registers will ring up record sales.

The late Easter — it comes three weeks later than in 1964 — was a favorable factor.

"It's always better for business when Easter is late," said a Denver merchant. "A woman is less apt to be in the mood to buy a flowery spring hat when it's snowing."

"We would have fallen on our faces if Easter had been early this year," said an executive of Filene's, which has 10 department stores in the Boston area.

"People are like crocodiles. They don't come out until the sun gets warmer."

Only a few retailers contacted in a nationwide Associated Press survey said that the heavier income tax payments which many people faced due to underwithholding had affected sales.

"Business has been — in one word — lousy," said an executive of a big Philadelphia store. "Unfavorable weather. The late Easter. Then there is this IRS (tax) thing, which must be fouling up the affairs of millions of people, and certainly not helping the economy."

In New York, David Yunich, president of Macy's, big department store chain, said, "We have noted an upsurge that indicates a big pickup this month and I expect Macy's New York to turn in for March and April over the like period of 1964."

Bernard Zients, executive head of Gimbel's, another major New York department store chain, said he expects "wonderful" Easter business and indicated the present trend shows "all the earmarks" of a gain over last year.

Bloody Clashes Erupt In Korea On Japan Talks

SEOUL, South Korea, (AP) — Bloody clashes erupted today as 5,000 students protesting government talks with Japan battled riot police.

Police fired tear gas to check the advance of the largest group, about 2,000 students of Korea University. Police hit the students on the head with wooden clubs. Students retaliated by throwing rocks.

Scores of students were injured. A police announcement said 49 policemen were injured. The announcement said 409 students and 15 other persons were taken into custody for questioning.

The talks to normalize Japanese-Korean relations are nearing completion.

The demonstrators today concentrated their protest on virtual abolition of the Korean fishing boundary which had barred Japanese fishermen from waters around the Korean peninsula.

Crimson Rally Nets 6-4 Diamond Edge

PITTSFIELD — Held to only two hits through the first six innings, the Jacksonville Crimson rallied for six runs in the seventh frame here Monday afternoon, to notch a 6-4 triumph over the Pittsfield Saukees.

JHS collected five of their seven safeties in the decisive seventh, including key doubles by Ron Coleman and Tom Woods. Four Jacksonville pitchers worked the contest, with Larry Samples getting credit for the victory, the Crimson's fourth against no losses.

Through the first six frames Larry Ransom had limited the Jacks to only singles by Larry Damrau and Tom Woods. Rich Coble started the frame by drawing a free pass off Ransom, took second on a passed ball and scored on two successive balks by the Pittsfield hurler. Pinchhitter Charles Robson also drew a walk, took second on a passed ball and got to third on the two balks.

An error on Damrau's ground-er let in another run, and a boot on Creston Whitaker's ball allowed the third JHS tally.

Dennis Wegeholt kept the frame going with a single and Coleman promptly slashed a double scoring the tying run. Woods followed with another double for the go-ahead tally. Larry Welch provided another with a single and a 6-4 winning edge.

Pittsfield got their only four runs in a third-inning outburst against starter Duane Hess, on only two singles and three free passes.

Celtics Incited Over Rough Order

BOSTON (AP) — A Philadelphia bench order to "bang around" the Celtics more has incited Boston to fever pitch for an attempted National Basketball Association playoff kill Tuesday night.

The Celtics invaded the 76ers home court which Coach Red Auerbach calls "The Snake Pit." They need one victory to wrap up their ninth straight Eastern Division crown. They moved ahead 3-2 in the best-of-7 series with a 114-108 decision Sunday.

After the rough contest, Boston cornerman Tommy Heinsohn said "The water boy came over at halftime and said Coach Dolph Schayes had ordered the 76ers to bang us around. Lucious Jackson followed it to the hilt.

"Jackson twice trapped the ball and fouled at the same time. He put me and then K.C. Jones in the bleachers and slammed Sam Jones to the floor.

"After the overtime loss in Philadelphia, we couldn't wait to get on the court here. We were the most eager we've ever been for any game.

Three-Base Boot Boosts Twins To 5-4 Opening Win

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Minnesota Twins cashed in an 11th-inning run after a three-base error and beat the New York Yankees 5-4 Monday in a season-opening battle of misplays.

Bob Allison opened the bottom of the 11th with a long fly to left which sub outfielder Arturo Lopez misjudged and dropped.

Allison went all the way to third and after two intentional walks loaded the bases, the Yanks got two outs before Cesar Tovar atoned for an earlier error with a single to center that Tom Tresh barely missed catching with a diving effort.

The Yanks made five errors and the Twins three in the game before 15,388 fans, many of whom had to skirt floodwaters to reach Metropolitan Stadium.

Bailey's Homer Beats Marichal In Tenth, 1-0

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bob Bailey's home run leading off the 10th inning broke up a brilliant pitching duel between the Giants' Juan Marichal and Pittsburgh's Bob Veale and sent the Pirates to a 1-0 season-opening victory over San Francisco Monday.

Bailey's shot over the left field wall was only the fifth hit off Marichal, who had a no-hitter through 3 1-3 innings and hadn't allowed a previous runner past second.

Veale was even better, though he had to work out of minor jams in the first and fourth innings before taking the triumph before the opening day crowd of 28,180.

The Pirate lefty struck out 10 and walked only one in going all the way. He allowed only three hits.

Record Opening Day Crowd Sees Bosox Bomb Nats

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson tossed out the first ball Monday and the Boston Red Sox socked it all over the lot, whalloping five home runs in whipping Washington 7-2.

Lennie Green hit two home runs and Felix Mantilla, Tony Conigliaro and Lee Thomas had one each. Thomas' came with two men on base.

The Senators snapped Bill Monbouquette's string of 37 scoreless innings against them with Don Lock's leadoff home run in the second, but that was about all they could do against the Red Sox right-hander who now has beaten them five straight times.

Warm sunshine and a crowd of 43,554—largest ever for an opening day in the nation's capital—were on hand for Johnson's first pitch, a soft liner that sailed over most of the players.

Washington's Steve Ridzik grabbed the ball away from a mob of players. Senator catcher Mike Brumley got the second toss.

Nicklaus' Problems Are Just Starting Says Hogan, Jack

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Now that he's won his second Masters title and become the No. 1 tournament golfer of the world at 25, problems are just beginning for Jack Nicklaus.

So says Ben Hogan, and Jack agreed Monday.

"Once you reach this station, the hard thing is to live up to it," said Hogan, the fabled pro of the 1950s, in reviewing Nicklaus' astonishing 271 score which cracked Hogan's 12-year-old Masters record by three strokes.

"The strain is tremendous," Hogan said, "it's not so difficult proving it to the public as it is proving it to yourself."

"I completely agree with Ben," Jack said as he prepared to return to his Columbus, Ohio, home.

"Every time you walk out to that first tee, you realize you are under a great responsibility. People expect a lot of you. You have to deliver. Also, you have to keep delivering for yourself, or your confidence suddenly gets shaken."

"It's awfully tough on a man. I think that's why a player is unable to stay at the top for very long."

Always The Favorite

During the late 1940s and early 1950s when he won four U.S. Opens, the PGA, the British Open and two Masters, Hogan was the favorite in every tournament he entered.

The same role with its gnawing pressure—is ahead for Nicklaus, now the undisputed king of pro golf.

Barring injury or other bad luck, he is likely to dominate the game for the next 10 years and surpass every record in the books.

Nicklaus has set no immediate goal for himself—not even the professional grand slam, which always has been the target of Arnold Palmer. His aim is to win all the tournaments he can and prove himself the greatest golfer ever lived.

"The slam, in itself, means nothing to me," the young champion said. "I will play in all the major championships, of course, but my intention is to take them one at a time."

No man has ever won the four big ones in one year. Hogan won the U.S. and British Opens and the Masters in 1953. In 1960, Palmer started with the Masters and U.S. Open, missed the British Open by one stroke and failed in the PGA after leading by one stroke.

Two of the good-sized crowd that sat through the Illinois College-Quincy College baseball game on Lincoln Avenue Monday afternoon were on hand to take a look at Blueboy shortstop Bob Jenkins.

Although the game was played in below 50-degree weather under an overcast sky, both Bill Jackson, who scouts for the Pittsburgh Pirates, and Fred Simmons, scout for the Cincinnati Reds, had left worse weather to take in the contest.

Both were on hand to look over Jenkins, a flashy-fielding, good-hitting senior who is playing his fourth year of ball for coach Joe Brooks.

Jackson, who has followed Jenkins for some time both in college and in the summertime Central States League, a semi-pro loop, drove down from his home in Ft. Madison, Iowa, and Simmons, who lives in St. Louis but had been scouting in Northern Illinois, witnessed the results of some turbulent weather over the weekend.

Jenkins has played in the Central States League for three summers, and Jackson commented that he had a good season last year.

"It's a pretty good semi-pro league, and he had a good summer. We're definitely interested in him."

"He has a good glove all the time. His speed is okay. His speed would not keep him from making it professional," commented Jackson.

While Jackson has seen Jenkins numerous times, Simmons was looking for the first time and was admittedly impressed.

When asked if either had any immediate plans for Jenkins both commented that no one had any plans for college players at present until the effect of the proposed new draft system is determined.

"I think it will definitely have to go to court to determine if it is to be allowed," said Jackson of the rule which would prohibit any bonus signings.

The new draft system would work much in the same way that football and basketball players are drafted, through mutual meetings and drafting by member teams. This would prohibit the high-priced bonus signings so prevalent in recent years.

Both scouts took notice after Quincy's Fred Curtis, a former Routt standout who does everything well, collected his second straight hit in the game, a shot to right field.

"He looks like he has good power, and is fast enough, but I haven't had a chance to see his arm yet," said Simmons.

Those interested in playing for the Jacksonville entry in the Little Elks League this summer, now under the sponsorship of the City Water and Light Department, are asked to contact Buford Green at the Journal-Courier as soon as possible.

New suits for the team, formerly known as the Jacksonville Merchants, will have to be ordered immediately, and as many sizes as possible should be known.

Hawks Down Blueboys 7-2

Quincy College hurler Dennis Trame limited Illinois College to only five hits and struck out in pitching his Hawks to a 7-2 diamond triumph over the Blueboys at the Lincoln Avenue field Monday afternoon.

The visiting Hawks were in command from the first inning in, putting together a pair of three-run frames, while Trame held the hosts scoreless until the sixth.

Jacksonville native Fred Curtis collected a pair of singles both good for RBI's during the contest. Quincy started off with three runs in the opening round on a single, a fielder's choice, a stolen base, singles by Curtis and Ted Kruse and an IC boot.

Curtis drove in another in the seventh with a single to round out the visitor's scoring.

Illinois College's first run came in the sixth when Jim Harrick, Theodore walked and scored on Bob Rittenhouse's single Berthelino, if when the throw back in went to the cut-off man trying to nab Rittenhouse going to second.

The final tally for the hosts came in the seventh when shortstop Bob Jenkins tripled to deep right center and scored on Dan Runkle's single through

Don George Resigns At Virginia

VIRGINIA — Don George, head football and baseball coach at Virginia High school for the past three years, turned in his resignation Monday night, thus becoming the second head Virginia coach to resign in the past three weeks.

Basketball coach of two years, Monty Nohren, resigned his post three weeks ago.

George turned in one of the best football records in the area in his three years at the Virginia helm. His Redbird-coached gridiron teams have a string of 21 games without a loss going. The last time Virginia lost a football game was in October, 1962.

George plans to stay in the coaching profession, if not in this area possibly in the northern part of the state. He is a graduate of Rock Island Alleman High, where he was head baseball and assistant baseball and football mentor for three years. He also coached, head golf, assistant football, in Orlando, Florida Colonial High before coming to Virginia.

The Western Illinois grad guided his football team to a 6-4 record in his first season, and identical 8-0-1 marks the final two years, winning the PMSC outright and tying for the title once.

Cards And Cubs Fight To 10-10 11-Frame Tie

CHICAGO (AP) — The World Champion St. Louis Cardinals and the Chicago Cubs struggled to a 10-10 opening-day tie Monday with the game being called after 11 innings on account of darkness.

Each club pushed across a run in the 11th after Ernie Banks' three-run homer. With two out in the ninth had tied it for the Cubs.

The game goes into the books as a tie and must be replayed later in the season.

The Cardinals had grabbed the early lead with four Chicago errors helping St. Louis score four unearned runs. Larry Jackson, a 24-game winner for the Cubs last year, failed to survive a five-run Cardinal first and Bob Gibson, St. Louis' World Series hero last October, blew 5-0 and 7-0 leads.

Tracy Stallard, who relieved Gibson in the fifth, hurled hitless ball until the ninth when, with two out and St. Louis leading 9-6, Ron Santo walked and George Altman singled. Schultz relieved Stallard and Banks tied the score with the 37th home run of his career.

Santo's 11th inning double tied it again after three St. Louis singles had pushed across a run in the top half of the inning.

Rookie infielder Roberto Pena, who made three errors in the game, opened the Cubs' 11th with a single and moved to second on a passed ball. Santo's double delivered the tying run.

Lou Brock's third hit of the day had driven in the St. Louis run in the top half following singles by third stringer catcher Dave Ricketts and Curt Flood. Flood had four hits in the game.

DRIVER AWAKENS AFTER 8 MONTHS OF UNCONSCIOUSNESS

ANGELHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A Swedish automobile racing driver who was severely injured in a race last summer has awakened after eight months of unconsciousness. Doctors, who called his return to life a medical sensation, said he probably will recover fully in about a year.

A meeting for all managers and coaches of the Little League baseball teams has been called for Thursday, April 15, at 7:45 p.m. The meeting will be held upstairs at the Elks Club. The League is in need of a manager and several coaches. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Viet Power Plays Gain Momentum

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Power plays within South Viet Nam's high command seemed Monday to be gaining the kind of momentum that in the past has led to coups. A number of officers have disappeared and there were rumors of some arrests.

A resurgence of military politics brought the ouster of the commanders of the navy and the Saigon special military district at the weekend while the United States was landing additional Marines for duty at Da Nang and Hue in the war against the Viet Cong.

The odd men out were Adm. Chung Tan Cang, the navy commander who had surmounted a mutiny Thursday by 20 junior officers; and Brig. Gen. Pham Van Dong, the Saigon military district commander who has been highly respected by the U.S. mission.

Charges of corruption were leveled against both, but it was

Forecasters Warned Of All But Two Twisters Sunday

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The tornadoes were too many, too fast and in the wrong places at the wrong time.

They slashed and gouged the upper Midwest for 12 hours Sunday, killing more than 200 persons and injuring hundreds more. But nobody, including the Weather Bureau experts, will ever be sure just how many twisters there were.

Even so, only two occurred outside the area for which tornado warnings had been issued.

"We recorded 37 but a number of these were multiple — that is two or more twisters hitting in the same specific locality," explained Don House, chief of the Kansas City Weather Bureau under whose direction is operated the severe local storm forecast center for the country. This unit keeps records on all such storms.

"This spurge of storms happens on the average of once or twice a year, usually in Texas or Oklahoma. But out there they are most likely to hit open

PROS CLEAN OUT VIRGINIA GOLF CLUB OVER THE WEEKEND

BEARDSTOWN — The Virginia Country Club pro, Jack Moore, is not out of business completely—he still has the golf course!

But there isn't much of a selection of clubs or golf balls in the pro shop.

That's because the place was ransacked late Saturday night when a thief or thieves got away with $1500 worth of new golf clubs, and $1,000 worth of new golf balls.

This was the second time in two years that the shop has been "cleaned out" — but in 1963 the Cass County sheriff managed to recover most of the $2,000 worth of loot taken. Chief Deputy Sheriff John Walters investigated the robbery Sunday — he said entrance was gained through a shop window. No clues have been reported.

does are expected in the upper Midwest in May or June — rarely in April. And just as rarely as far east as Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

"But our forecasting was so accurate," House said, "that only two of the tornadoes occurred outside of the areas for which we had issued advance warnings. One of these was in western Wisconsin and one in eastern Iowa. So far as we can find out, no one was killed in either. These two were just outside areas covered in our forecasts and if people had been watching the skies, they might well have anticipated they were in for some bad weather."

Warning System

The warning system depends in the main on volunteer observers in a 50 to 100-mile radius around reporting centers. During the tornado season, these observers watch gathering storm clouds and notify their center immediately if they spot tornado formations. Putting this information together with scientific data collected by radar and other devices, the Weather Bureau experts issue their advance warnings.

The Sunday storms were touched off by a very low pressure system which moved rapidly from central Iowa across northern Illinois and the lower Great Lakes area. This collided with a broad band of moist and unstable air moving up from the Gulf of Mexico. These two systems were tangled with an intense band of winds — up to 170 miles an hour — moving from southwest to northeast.

Boat Marking Bill To Kerner

SPRINGFIELD — A bill providing for the affixing of identification numbers on boats passed the Illinois Senate Monday and was sent to the governor.

Sponsored by C. R. (Butch) Ratcliffe, D-Beardstown, the measure would also require that boat owners notify the Department of Conservation of any change in address.

The bill also provides that at least one Coast Guard approved life preserver for each occupant shall be on board and readily accessible.

Buoyant cushions and vests are not approved for this purpose by the bill.

The department is also authorized to set up a waterway marking system similar to that specified by the Coast Guard.

Alabama Jury Hears Evidence In Reeb Slaying

SELMA, Ala. (AP)—Two companions of the Rev. James J. Reeb of Boston on the night he was fatally beaten testified Monday before a grand jury considering evidence against four white men charged in Reeb's slaying.

Testifying before the Dallas County grand jury were the Rev. Orloff F. Miller, 25, of Boston, and the Rev. Clark Olson, 32, Berkeley, Calif. Both are white.

The ministers, who, with Reeb, were beaten March 9 after they had eaten in a Negro cafe in Selma, refused to comment on their session with the grand jury which lasted an hour and a half.

The ministers, along with Reeb who died two days after the beating, were in Selma in early March to aid in the Negro voter drive.

The four Selma men charged with the slaying of the 38-year-old Unitarian white minister are Odel Hoggie, 30; his brother, William Stanley Hoggie, 36; R.B. Kelly, 30, and Elmer Cook, 41.

Under Alabama law, first-degree murder is punishable by death or life imprisonment. The jury determines the sentence.

The four, free under state and federal bonds totaling $12,500 each, also face federal charges of violating Reeb's constitutional rights under the Civil Rights Act. On the federal charge, the maximum penalty is a $5,000 fine or 10 years imprisonment or both.

Circuit Solicitor Blanchard McLeod said other witnesses were expected to appear before the grand jury in connection with the slaying.

There are no Negroes on the grand jury, which has 27 other cases to consider. This was its first meeting since Reeb's death. McLeod said no indictments will be made public until all cases are completed.
